DRASTIC REFORM OF HOUSE OF LORDS PROPOSED IN NEW BILL

FRANCE'S ADEQUATE DEFENCES

"468,000 in Army And 500,000 Reservists."

WAR MINISTER CONFIDENT OF SECURITY

Paris, To-day.
"The Spring of 1934 will be a critical period for Europe and France," declared M. Tardieu, in the course of a heated debate in the Chamber of Deputies on a Bill providing for the delaying from one month to four months, of the calling up of the French conscripts for 1934-36, in order to increase the number called up during the years 1936-40, the lean years corresponding to the decreased birthrate of 1915-19.

M. Tardieu protested that the Army would thus be reduced by a number of battalions in the Spring of 1934.

He declared that France needed a safeguard for peace. The War Minister, M. Daladier, replied that France was in a position to assure its own security. She possessed 468,000 men on the active list, 500,000 fully-trained reservists, excellent modern war material and a fortified system of defence without parallel in history. — Reuter.

GERMAN FOREIGN TRADE DECLINE

Big Drive Started For Recovery.

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE ABROAD

Berlin, To-day.
A big drive to improve Germany's dwindling foreign trade was yesterday inaugurated at the first meeting of the newly instituted Foreign Trade Council attended by the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Baron von Neurath and Herr Schmitt, the Minister of Economics.

The Council is purely an advisory body, but its recommendations are expected to carry the weight of the Government.

Herr Schmitt pointed out that German exports have declined 7.1 per cent. since 1932 while world exports have increased by about one per cent. (Continued on Page 12.)

SAFETY VALUE FOR COMMONS

JOINT COMMITTEE TO PASS MONEY BILLS

BILL NOT NECESSARILY SUPPORTED
BY GOVERNMENT

LONDON, TO-DAY.

IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS, LAST NIGHT, THE MARQUESS OF SALISBURY INTRODUCING A BILL FOR REFORM OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS, DECLARED THAT THE BILL DID NOT PROPOSE TO REPEAL THE PARLIAMENT ACT.

It recognised certain constitutional principles, namely, that the power of finance belonged to the House of Commons and that the final authority was the people.

Under the House of Commons power in finance, however, other legislation might be passed, also the legislation passed might not be the deliberate judgment of the people, but the judgment of the passing majority.

The Bill proposed a joint committee of Both Houses, with the Speaker as Chairman, for the certification of money Bills, instead of the Speaker alone.

Further, if the reformed House of Lords rejected a Bill three times by an absolute majority of the whole House, not merely those present, the final decision would be referred to the next ensuing sitting of the House of Commons, whose decision would be conclusive.

Regarding the proposed reduction on the hereditary principle, Lord Salisbury observed that only one during the last session of the House of Lords had the attendance exceeded 150. He therefore proposed that the new House consist of 160 hereditary Peers, and 160 Lords of Parliament, to be chosen outside the Peerage, besides the Royal Peers, the reduced number, with Bishops and Law Lords, totalling 320. — Reuter.

FULLER DETAILS OF BILL.

Not Yet Considered
By Government.

London, To-day.
In the House of Lords last evening Lord Salisbury moved a Private Bill for the reform of the House of Lords by reducing its membership and strengthening its powers to impose delay on legislation.

In introducing the measure he stated that members of both Houses had formed a small committee to submit proposals that would secure Britain against any sudden and subversive change, and the Bill was based on those proposals.

He called attention to affairs abroad, where the old order was superseded by dictatorships or disruptive changes, and he argued that in Britain also they must insure against the possibilities of subversive attempts to set up two methods of Government.

The duty of the House of Lords, he said, was to make such changes in its constitution as they would make country safe, and in so doing they should go no further than was absolutely necessary.

The aim of the Bill was to give the House of Lords sufficient power to prevent country from being hurried into vast changes without time given to consider them.

The measure proposed that the hereditary element in the House should be greatly reduced—to 160 Peers with 160 members added from outside, plus Peers of Blood Royal, members of the Episcopal Bench on a reduced scale and a number of Law Lords, making a total membership of about 320.

After the measure had been criticised by Labour and Liberal Peers, Lord Hallam, Minister of War, on behalf of the Government, said it was the custom to give a first reading to every Bill. He would therefore note for its introduction but that did not mean that the Government, or he personally, supported it.

As the Government had not considered the subject, he said, he could not on their behalf express an opinion on the measure.

Leave to introduce the Bill was given by 84 votes to 35.—British Wireless Service.

REFORM OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Britain Will Uphold

Replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday regarding the suggested reforms in the League of Nations, the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, said that the Government would continue to give the closest attention to the matter with a view to upholding the usefulness and authority of the League.—British Wireless Service.

Madrid, To-day.

The Spanish Premier, Senor Lerroux, in a Ministerial declaration, issued yesterday, stressed that the Republic must be Nationalist. "The first step to this end was the re-establishment of social peace and discipline."

In view of the recent riots, the Government was unable to propose a general amnesty, but specific cases would be considered, he said.

How To Remedy Falling Hair

Lemon Stimulates Growth.

Does your hair tend to fall out in circumscribed patches? Rub (gently at first, later with some friction) into the bald spot a lotion of lactic acid three parts, water four parts, alcohol (90 per cent.) to 24 parts.

A homely remedy, often efficacious, to stimulate growth of new hair is to rub well on the surface a cut lemon, sprinkled with Gsa powder.

WINTER HATS ARE EXTRAVAGANT.

Many Trimmings Now
Mode.

The makers of hat trimmings are happy because winter hats are all a-blowing with feathers, ribbons, metal and glass pins.

Velvet hats lend themselves to points the best, because these need not be exaggerated. The new felt hats are narrower in the crown. When these are not pointed somewhere, they are shaped like the black cap worn by a master of hounds, and are called the "Quorn."

New Decree For Underwear.

All obvious colours are avoided now for underwear. Crude pinks and whites are put aside for ice green, silver-parchment, and honey. Black is the only positive "colour."

Ice Blue New Tint
For Brides.

Ice blue is the colour brides are choosing for the great day. Dress and veil are of this smoky "off-white" and a silver and diamond coronet on the brow completes the picture.

LIPSTICK FOR BLONDES

A new lipstick, made especially for blondes is called Nasturtium. It is a light red-orange, and looks its best worn with tweeds in the country. A lighter make-up is necessary there.

Hog-Skin Waterproofs Are New.

Hog-skin comes into the limelight these days in the form of the newest waterproof coat. It is much softer than the usual leather. It is a becoming sunshine yellow, and is worn with brown.

Metal Polish Cleans Celluloid.

Celluloid articles or celluloid motor car windows frequently become dirty, discoloured and yellow. Clean with metal polish and rub afterwards with a soft duster.

BRIDGE NOTES

CONTRACT BRIDGE

BY ANCHORITE

XVI

(This series of articles is based on Culbertson's system of bidding).

Opening Two No-Trump Bids. An opening bid of "Two No-Trump" is not forcing, as it does not give a choice between at least one suit and a no-trump. It requires about 5 honour tricks when vulnerable, and all four suits stopped.

This bid demands a raise on slightly better than 1 honour trick, and take-out with a five or six card biddable suit—always provided there is 1 honour trick in hand.

Not vulnerable, it may be weaker and based on a long solid minor suit, with a number of Queens and Knives in side suits. A raise can be made with 1 plus honour trick.

Opening Three No-Trump. This bid is made on hands containing at least eight sure tricks in honours, with all suits stopped and no biddable suit.

It could be made on the following hand:

Spades A K Q
Hearts A x x x
Diamonds A K x
Clubs A K x
Opening Suit Bids of Three and Four

The difference between opening bids of one and two, and opening bids of three and four, is that one and two bids require adequate trump support from partner, while three and four bids guarantee at least five sure trump tricks.

An opening major bid of three is only partly a shut-out bid, and requires some outside strength.

When not vulnerable, the requirements are 7-8 winning tricks in all (4 sure trump tricks), including 1 honour trick in side suits—a total of two-three honour tricks. Responding hand can raise with about 1 plus honour trick, or a good distribution (such as a singleton with three trumps).

When vulnerable, a minimum of 8 sure winners (5 sure trump tricks) is required, including 1½ honour tricks in outside strength—a total of 2-3½ honour tricks.

Partner can raise with about 1 honour trick, or good distribution (singleton with three trumps). Should partner consider a raise to slam, he must bear in mind that the bid guarantees 8 sure winners only, but not more than 3½ honour tricks in all.

Minor Bids

A minor opening bid of three must have a long powerful trump suit, such as A K Q J x x x and Queens and Knives in outside strength. It is generally considered inadvisable to open with a minor three suit bid.

A minor opening bid of four is partly a shut-out bid, and requires about 9 playing tricks when not vulnerable, and at least 9 when vulnerable. Responding hand can raise once with about 1 honour trick (one good distribution), not vulnerable, and 1½ honour tricks vulnerable. This bid, in comparison to a three bid, does not necessarily guarantee a solid trump suit, but the fact that the bid liberally shuts out a bid of three no-trumps is an inference that the distribution is very freakish.

Pre-emptive Bids

Pre-emptive bids, or shut-out bids, are opening bids for game—four in majors, and five in minors. These bids guarantee a long powerful trump suit, and may have no outside strength whatsoever.

These hands are very strong in distribution, but weak in defence, and are entirely unsuited for either penalty doubles or take-outs. The requirements are eight playing tricks vulnerable, and seven playing tricks not vulnerable for major four; and nine playing tricks vulnerable, and eight not vulnerable, for minor five bids.

As these bids are based on two supporting tricks from dummy, if vulnerable, and three if not vulnerable, dummy must deduct these two and three tricks, and raise with winners in excess of these only, but bearing in mind that opener has practically no outside strength.

With hands of above types the only way is to attack boldly, and hope to win through with a minor imminence.

FREAKISH HANDS

The following is one of the hands played in the recent International Tournament and is a good illustration of the dangers of a seven bid.

Pass 1 Spade! Pass 6 Spades?

Pass Pass Pass

1 Too strong for a pre-emptive bid of three or four.

2 An interesting example of a deliberate refusal to make a forcing take-out, as South's hand is so freakish that the dangers of a seven bid are obvious. A bid of "Three Diamonds" followed by a bid of "Six Spades" would be a definite invitation for partner to bid seven if he holds more than a minimum opening bid, as it guarantees at least 8½ honour tricks. The immediate bid of "Six Spades" denies 3½ honour tricks and is a warning to partner that a grand slam should not be attempted.

The play—Although the lead is immaterial, let us assume a Heart is led. Declarer realises at once that the contract depends upon the diamond situation. He wins first trick with Ace of Hearts, and immediately ruffs a Heart in dummy, and then leads out the Ace of Clubs. Returning to his own hand with a trump, he now wins his remaining high Club. The hand is now ready for the proper play of Diamonds. Declarer should lead a Diamond from his own hand, and take it with the Ace in dummy. Return a small one in the hope that the King or the Queen is alone in some hand. Should this be the case the player who takes that trick will be forced to lead either a Heart or a Club, which enables declarer to discard the last Diamond from his own hand. If one hand held King, Queen, small, in Diamonds, the contract would be decided.

"Puzzled Student" is requested to send his name and address to the Contract Bridge Editor who will forward a reply, as the question is too long to be answered in this column.

CHINA TO CLASH WITH PORTUGAL

A. V. Gosano May Lead Challengers.

FUNG MAY NOT PLAY
(By OUTSIDE LEFT).

Monday and Tuesday will witness the completion of Semi-Final rounds of the "Sunday Herald" International Charity Cup Competition when China meet Portugal and Wales meet England.

Portugal, who have selected fifteen players, will have to produce excellent form to defeat last year's winners, China, who, although they have lost several of their best men, are still a formidable force.

The Chinese team will be probably consist of Wong Wing (S.C.A.A.), Li Tin-sang and Leung In-chun (S.C.A.A.), Lai Kwok-chiu (C.A.A.), Leung Wing-chui and Lai Kwok-wai (S.C.A.A.); Yeung Shui-yick (S.C.A.A.), Ip Yuen-lam (S.C.A.A.), Ho Ka-keung (C.A.A.), Tam Kong-pak and Tay Quee-liang (S.C.A.A.).

I have selected Ho Ka-keung in the eventuality of Fung King-cheong being unable to turn out owing to illness, while Lai Kwok-chiu is an outstanding half and the equal, if not the better, of Tong Kwan of South China who usually fills that position.

Not Representative

Portugal have not yet selected their team, but it is not likely to be as strong as it might have been judging from the fifteen selected players.

The selectors will probably include several of the Recreio men instead of leaving the Saints' team with the exception of Silva-Netto in defence instead of A. V. Gosano, who would fill the centre forward position vacated by David Leonard.

A. V. Gosano will require a great deal of watching by the Chinese halves, while his brother, who will probably fill the outside right berth, will also require a watchful eye.

China's strength at forward will be opposed to Beltrao of the Saints, and possibly Elms, the other wing half position possibly being filled by a Recreio player in Sousa.

Should Fung King-cheong play, his partnership with Tam Kong-pak will be the most dangerous on the field, while the Yeung Shui-yick and Ip Yuen-lam partnership will also be considerably in the limelight if I am not mistaken.

MULLANE

(South Wales Borderers).

ONE of the outstanding service players since the Borderers' arrival in the Colony, Daniel Mullane, the Borderers' right full-back played in his first big game in Cairo after leaving his native shore.

Born in Pontoligny, South Wales, in 1908, he first played soccer for his school in Pontoligny, and was such an outstanding success at right back that he gained three Welsh Schoolboy International trials and was selected as first reserve in the 1924-25 season.

In 1927 Mullane enlisted with the Borderers and left Wales for Egypt, playing in his first big representative game in Cairo when the Borderers played in the Egyptian Command Final.

After playing for his Battalion during their time in Cairo, Mullane

LINCOLNS SHOULD RETAIN LEAD

SOUTH CHINA MAY BE WITHOUT FUNG

POLICE FAVOURED TO BEAT KOWLOON OVER HOLIDAYS

(By OUTSIDE LEFT.)

THE Christmas holidays will provide a very mediocre League Football programme with the Borderers and Club supplying the one interesting encounter.

THE Lincolns, who have definitely established themselves as League leaders, are not likely to meet with much opposition from the Artillery whom they meet at the Valley.

THE Club, though F. Fowler is far from fit, should get the better of the Borderers who have had a fortnight's rest from League football. It will be a close game in which the Club trio, Howe, E. Strange, and Bickford, will probably prove the deciding factor.

The Club suffered a serious lapse last week when they tried out the right wing formation of Hill and Fowler. The latter was distinctly off form and if I am not mistaken his injured right foot is still troubling him.

Hill made an excellent debut at inside right, but his openings, although magnificent pieces of work, were not for Fowler but for Howe, who bungled badly with mistimed shots.

I suggest that Fowler be a given rest for a week or two and in the meantime the Club should bring one of their second team players up for the outside right position.

The Borderers have not shown consistent form this season but are by no means a spent force. Their encounter with the Club on Saturday should provide a fairly even struggle with the Club slightly on top.

The Mullane-Morrison partnership has never been better than this season, and if only an improvement could be made at right half, now filled by Wallace, the Borderers would have been one of this season's most formidable challengers.

The trouble with Wallace is that he plays too many mid-week games and as a result is stale by the time the week-end games arrive.

Left Wing Danger

To win Saturday's encounter, the Borderers will have to stem the left wing formation of Bickford and E. Strange, while Howe and Hill will want careful watching. I do not think that Fowler can maintain the form he showed at the beginning of the season under the circumstances, and therefore will not constitute a real danger to the Borderers.

A game which should provide a well-balanced affair should be the Kowloon and Police clash on the Railway ground.

The Police, after a shaky start, have improved by leaps and bounds, providing a sensation by drawing with St. Joseph's last Saturday.

CHAMPIONS' ELEVEN

The following will represent South China against the East Lanes on Sunday in their First Division League encounter:— Wong Wing, Li Tin-sang and Lau Mai, Leung in chair, Leung Wing-chui and Lee Kwok-wai; Yeung Shui-yick, Ip Yuen-lam, Fung King-cheong, Tam Kong-pak and Tay Quee-liang.

came with his Regiment to Hong Kong. In 1921 he was selected to play right-back for the Colony against Shanghai, but the trouble up North unfortunately cancelled the Interport. He was, however, again selected in 1922 when he accompanied the victorious Colony team to Shanghai in November last year when they defeated the Northerners by the odd goal to seven.

Following Allen's arrival in the Colony, Mullane was selected as first reserve against Shanghai in February this year.

Last year Mullane in partnership with Morrison played a great part in the Borderers' serious challenge for League and Shield honours.

Outside Left.

In meeting Kowloon they should take two points and climb back to their original challenging position for the first three places. Lacking a good centre-forward of Johnson's type the Police forwards would be seen to better advantage if they attempted more shots at goal.

The Royal Navy, who visit the Recreio at King's Park, and the Saints, who meet the Athletic at Caroline Hill, should also garner full points.

On Sunday South China meet the East Lanes at Sookunpoo, where they lost to the Lincolns last week by the odd goal.

South China will probably make one change in their side Wong Mel-shun is unavailable owing to temporary suspension.

Should this be the case it is almost certain that Ip Chuen-lam will be brought back to his position. In the Second Division South China are within striking distance of the championship, while the Lincolns will be making a bold bid for leadership when they meet the Club seconds at home.

The Club have been most inconsistent this season, but it would occasion no surprise if they defeated the Lincolns after going under to Kowloon last week-end.

In the Third Division the Lincolns' 100 per cent. record will be threatened by South China at Chatham Road.

The Lincolns have at present a very good record having won all their eleven games with a goal average of 57 goals for and 4 against.

The following is my forecast of results during the holidays:

ENGLAND SHOULD BEAT WELSH ELEVEN

Faster Forwards And Hard-Working Halves

McGUIRE'S CLAIMS FOR RECOGNITION

(By OUTSIDE LEFT.)

Now that China have been weakened by the absence of several of their brilliant players, it very much looks as if England, who play their first game when they meet Wales during the Christmas holidays, will win this year's "Sunday Herald" International Charity Cup Competition.

England's team has not yet been selected, but it will probably be as follows:—

Combey (R.A.); Allen (R.A.) and S. Strange (Club); McGuire (Navy); Bickford (R.A.) and Skinner (Club); Bickford (Lincoln), E. Strange (Club); Langmead (Navy) or Howe (Club); Ridley and Hocquard (Lincolns).

This is a very sound combination as it possesses, in addition to a good forward line with speed and brains, an excellent defence, both in the last line and in the half backs.

McGuire, the Navy's pivot, certainly deserves a place, his performance in the Lal Wah Cup Competition alone justifying his inclusion.

Wales have also an excellent defence in Mullane and Morrison, while the halves, Channings, and his wings, Wallace and Jones (??), are also of a high standard, although the former appears to have struck a stale patch.

England's chances of entering the Final are bright, for they possess faster forwards and harder working halves.

Wales' most anxious moments will be when Howe and his left wing combination of Ridley and Hocquard break through. Ridley will be the most dangerous of the English forwards, while E. Strange, should he play at inside right, will require careful shadowing. His speed and swerve has often left an opposing half or back standing.

Wales certainly gave a good account of themselves against Scotland, but in that game they were playing against a demoralised team. In meeting England they will be coming up against the possible winners and a decidedly superior team on paper.

A club of bakers' assistants in Tooling and Mitcham are not to be allowed to play football on Sundays. Instead they just have to loaf around.

Lincolns Third Team Create Record

Clark May Establish New Goal Scoring Figures

SAINTS' FIRST CHAMPIONSHIP?

(By OUTSIDE LEFT.)

HO KA-KEUNG, the Athletic inside forward, leads the First Division goal-scorers as the result of his "hat trick" against the Club on Saturday. Wong Mel-shun, the South China inside forward, and Albert Howe, the Club centre, are close on his heels.

Clark, the tall Lincolns' leader in the Third Division, is out to break a League record. Four goals against the Radio on Saturday brought his total to 24. He will be leaving the Colony in February, by which time he should have reached the half century.

There were five goals in twelve minutes in a "Spurs v. West Ham" match, and in Sydney Bradman got a century in 46 minutes. This sort of thing only encourages heavy-weight boxers to go out in split seconds.

Though many do not know it the Lincolns' Third Division team have established a new record by winning their first eleven games. Leading by 6 points with a goal average above five they are almost assured of the title.

Cigarette coupons are to be stopped. "Just when I'd arranged a profitable exchange for one of our players," grumbled a football manager.

South China's lucky win against the Police by the odd goal was the forerunner of three serious checks in their defence of the League Championship. They lost to the Club, were lucky to draw with the Navy, beat Kowloon decisively, and then lost to the Lincolns.

The Club and the Recreio were the only teams to win against South China last year.

The Lincolns, present League leaders, will be losing Pte. Heath (goalkeeper), Pte. Roden (right back), L/Cpl. Cork (centre-half), and Cpl. Bett (right half) in February when the troopship leaves.

They will have matches against the following to finish with a depleted team: East Lanes, Athletic, St. Joseph's, Navy, Police, Recreio, and Artillery.

Pte. Worrall, the centre-half, and L/Cpl. Deacon, goalkeeper, will be missed by the Lincolns' second team, who are still in the running for honours when the troopship sails in February.

A club of bakers' assistants in Tooling and Mitcham are not to be allowed to play football on Sundays. Instead they just have to loaf around.

HARRIS, the inside forward, and Wallace, a very sound half back, will be difficult to replace in the Borderers' premier eleven. They are going home in February. Combey, the brilliant Artillery custodian, is also likely to be on the "passenger" list.

"I'll come off all right to-day," said the newly transferred goalie. He came off on a stretcher.

The Borderers were the last military side to win the premier league. The East Surrey's won the title previous to them—in the 1924-5 season.

The following are the number of times Clubs competing in this season's premier league have won the title: Artillery (5), South China (3), Chinese Athletic (three seasons in succession, Club (1), Kowloon (1), Recreio (1), Navy (1) and Borderers (1).

St. Joseph's may join the list at the end of this season. They are my favourites.

"A little goes the wrong way," said the small winger as a hefty back bundled him over the touch-line.

Fung King-cheong, the South China centre, scored 38 goals to head the goal-scoring list in the 1930-1 season, but this season he has no more than five in all matches.

Chelsea F.C. are paying the 6000 miles travelling expenses of Gibb, the South African outside-left, to give him a trial.

A case of Gibb, and take the risk.

Kowloon, who have incurred the wrath of the F. A. Council by signing on six Argentinian players, came nearest to winning the title for the second time when they were runners-up to South China, six points in arrears, in the 1930-1 season. Jansson, Gillett, Grimwood and Spary were their leading goal-scorers.

Someone has discovered how to make boots from fish. Football boots, soiled and oiled, will make tricky footballers more slippery than eels.

The Navy, who meet the Civilians in the Final on Saturday week, have never won the Lal Wah Cup, while their rival have five triumphs in the series of nine encounters.

Let soaking toes dry! They only swell, who never use their weight.

I understand that the Lincolns have arranged their postponed fixture with the East Lanes for January 3, the date of the first Interport Trial. If this is the case it will be hard luck on Cork, Ridley, and Hocquard, or on the Lincolns' if the players must be selected!

South China's new Football and Tennis Pavilion at their Caroline Hill ground will be completed and opened before the Chinese New Year.

Wong Mel-shun of South China and Heath of the Lincolns, who were ordered off the field for disorderly behavior in the South China-Lincolns First Division encounter on Sunday last, will come before the Emergency Committee on Friday evening.

Nearly 5,000 Horses In Training During Season

HYPERION STANDS ALONE

Manchester, Nov. 15

MR. A. Bozmann's Jean's Dream, won the Manchester November Handicap, which brought the 1933 flat racing season in England to a close. Mr. Ben Warner's Free Fare ran second and Mr. F. H. Gregory's Bon Soldat was third. Jean's Dream, a 20-1 shot, flashed past the winning post a half-length ahead of Free Fare, while Bon Soldat was three lengths back, out-run in the stretch.

Mr. Washington Singer's Leighton was the favourite at 8 to 1. Free Fare paid his backers 9 to 1 for the place and Bon Soldat paid 50 to 1.

Generally acknowledged one of the best seasons for many years, racing was conducted on a high plane throughout the year, although trainers were handicapped owing to the prolonged summer drought. Many tracks reported better attendances than last year, while bookmakers and the totalisator experienced a considerable increase in patronage.

A feature of the season was the riding of Gordon Richards, who set up a new English record of 259 winners, bettering Fred Archer's 48-year-old record of 246 in one season.

Richards, who is only 28 years old, frequently rode four or five winners in one day, and on one occasion rode twelve winners in succession. He weighs 105 pounds, and has been champion jockey of England six times since 1925.

Approximately 5,000 horses were kept in training during the season which to-day's race brought to a close, and of these Lord Derby's Hyperion proved the most successful, winning both the Epsom Derby and Doncaster St. Leger in smashing style.

A mere pony in size, Hyperion is considered by many judges as the best classic winner seen on the English turf for many years.

He credited his popular owner with £23,000 in stakes, and a brilliant four-year-old career is prophesied for the champion son of Galinborough.

NEXT DERBY FAVOURITE

Next in the honours list came Lord Glanely's two-year-old Colombo, bred from a Derby winner, Manna, out of Lady Nalgine, and bought by his present owner for a few hundred pounds. This youngster won all his seven races, totalling £17,000 in stakes, and is favourite for next year's Derby.

The above-mentioned owners, Lord Derby and Lord Glanely, headed the winning owners' list, totalling approximately £27,000 and £23,000 respectively.

Next came Lord Astor and the Aga Khan with about £17,000 each, while King George, who experienced his best season for some time, won ten races in which the purses totalled £8,000. His best horse was the four-year-old Limglight, which won the Newbury Spring Cup, the Hardwicke Stakes at Ascot and the Duke of York Handicap at Kempton Park.

Amongst the successful breeders Sir Alec Black, who bred the season's champion two-year-old Colombo, headed the list, horses from his stud winning £35,000 in stakes.

Lord Derby came next with £23,000, while French-bred horses once again took a prominent part, totalling £27,000 in winnings. Mr. Fred Darling, of Beckenham, the Honourable George Lambton and Mr. Frank Butters, of Newmarket, were the most successful trainers, while William Nevett, Pat Sealley, Richard Farryman and the veteran Fred Fox, trained Richards in the "jockey" list.

BORDERERS
TRIUMPHLINCOLNS
BEATEN 2-1
AT HOCKEYHalford Excels For
The WinnersROISSIER PROMINENT AT BACK
(By STICKS).

The South Wales Borderers hockey eleven avenged their recent defeat at the hands of the Lincolns in a return match on the U.S.R.C. ground yesterday, winning a fast and evenly contested game by 2 goals to 1.

Both teams were very evenly balanced and a draw would have been a more satisfactory result.

The Borderers' forward line showed better combination and were well supported by a strong half-back line, Halford playing a much better game than he did on Monday against the Navy. The Lincolns' backs were the strength of their team, the forwards lacking combination.

The Borderers opened with a strong attack and took the lead after ten minutes when POLE snapped up a pass from Lt. de Winton to send in a shot which gave Hollingsworth no chance.

The Lincolns rallied and HOCQUARD broke through shortly afterwards to equalise with a very clever shot.

After a brief respite the Borderers went ahead through DE WINTON, who neatly converted a centre from Hinkley on the right wing.

The Lincolns continued to press, but were unable to score, forcing a corner just before the change over.

The Borderers played a much improved game in the second half, the forward line continually pressing the Lincolns' goal. Lt. Roissier, at left back, however, was sound and broke up many dangerous movements.

Lt. Wilson was hurt on the knee a few minutes before the final whistle and retired from the field.

Borderers

THE "Y" Ladies hockey team, assisted by Miss E. M. Gray of the Hong Kong Ladies and a Borderers' player, held a scratch Borderers' eleven to a 3-all draw at Sookunpoo yesterday.

Led 3-0 at half time the "Y" scored two of their goals through Miss E. Thomson and Miss P. McCaw.

Y.M.C.A. BEAT RECRCIO

A goal by G. H. Fowler, who was making his first appearance after a long absence owing to illness, gave the Y.M.C.A. victory over the Recrcio by a goal to nil in a scrappy hockey match at King's Park yesterday.

H.K.S.R.A. BEAT INCOGNITOS

The H.K.S.R.A. beat the Incognitos by 3 goals to 1 after leading 2-1 at the interval in their friendly hockey match at King's Park yesterday.

MEDICALS TRIUMPH

After leading by three goals at the interval the Royal Army Medical Corps beat the Royal Army Services Corps by 5 goals to 2 yesterday at Sookunpoo.

The 5-set match without a break was much too strenuous an ordeal for any player whose game must be subordinated to business. You have seen in the "Y" at Sookunpoo—and remember it is a more strenuous game than that I have played both so I know. How often do you see really good play in the 5th set of a match unbroken by rest? Hardly ever—John Borderers.

NAVY LOWER DECK
WEAKENEDSUFFER FIRST DEFEAT ON MONDAY

THE UMPIRING BOARD

(By STICKS)

THE Navy Lower Deck experienced their first defeat this season on Monday against the 3/9th Jat Regiment, who are leaving for India to-morrow.

The Jats scored early in the match, and added two others, but Navy Lower Deck bombarded the Jats goal incessantly in the second half, though netting only once through Harrison.

The team greatly felt the loss of McCrae, their brilliant centre-forward, while Rimmer (Veteran) who should have taken his place, was busy scoring 5 goals against H.M.S. Wren, the same afternoon. Tel Swann, Stoker Doe and Stoker Atwell were also absentees, having sailed for home.

Six. McCrae (H.M.S. Medway and Navy Lower Deck), has played over 145 games during his 2 years on the China Station, and his position will be hard to fill.

Tel Swann was one of the most versatile Navy players, being able to fill any position on the field, except goal.

Tallente, who played his first game for the Medway last week against H.M.S. Eagle, gave a promising display on the wing and more should be heard of this player in the near future.

A curious incident occurred in the match between the "Y" Ladies and the Borderers. In saving her goal Miss J. Weller, the goalkeeper, hit the corner flag and the ball bounded back into play. A Borderers player snapped up the ball to return it to the goalmouth only to be very rightly pulled up by the referee who gave a throw-in.

The Medway Officers met the Shameen Hockey Club twice over the week-end, winning both matches. On Saturday they defeated the Canton team by 5 goals to 2. Lt. Bartlett scoring all five. They won the return match the next day by 3 goals to 1.

A depleted Y.M.C.A. team did extremely well against the Royal Artillery Officers in a friendly encounter on the Marina ground last week.

G. P. Lammert was in brilliant form to score three goals, while F. Fowler, brought off some very clever saves in goal. He is a developing into a splendid player between the sticks.

G. Fowler, his brother, was unable to play owing to flu and a poisoned finger, but he has now fully recovered. D. McLellan, the "Y" captain, was also absent from the game owing to a shoulder injury received at Rugby.

The R.A. Officers, however, were without the services of Lt. Garthwaite, Lt. Laine, otherwise the result might have been very different.

Last week the weakened Army team were very fortunate to force a draw against the Hong Kong Club seniors at King's Park. A goal by Jall, the crack Jats inside-left, levelled matters in the last few minutes of the game.

Lt. Hocquard was the outstanding player on the field, while W. O. Senior, who also plays for the Club "A" eleven, gave a brilliant display at centre-forward for the Army. Lt. Garthwaite, Lt. Laine and Lt. Rolpaler were notable absentees from the Army team. Jack Rodger, who has been resting a twisted knee, returned to action in this match for the Club seniors, playing his usual sound and steady game at back.

I have received a letter from a reader who disagreed with the claim of the Navy Lower Deck to an unbeaten record prior to Monday.

I cannot vouch for past seasons' results, but I was officially informed by Chief Petty Officer Clark that the Navy Lower Deck team had played 7 matches this season and won every one.

Their victories include, Incognitos 2-1, Radio, 4-0, Jat Regiment 3-1 and the C. B. A. 2-0. It is possible that my correspondent is confusing the Navy Lower Deck with the Medway Lower Deck.

The referees' examination will include umpiring three matches under the observation of one of the Board, during which the candidate will be coached and given assistance in the method of umpiring. An oral examination will also be required to pass the test.

I understand Mr. E. J. R. Mitchell, who is not a qualified umpire himself, but who is a very experienced hockey player, will act only as Secretary to the Board, while the examinations will be held by Lt. Comdr. Leigh and Captain J. J. Lyon's successor.

There are only a handful of qualified umpires in the Colony at the moment, among whom, as far as I know, are Lt. Comdr. Leigh, Captain J. J. Lyons, Captain Morgan (Jats), and several of the Jats Indian officers, so that the need for qualified umpires cannot be too forcibly stressed.

I understood that the Board will pass out a number of candidates almost immediately and employ them to assist in examining the others. Lt. Comdr. Leigh pointed out at the meeting that it would be a very big job and that it would have to be done quickly as the Navy were leaving in the near future.

The Kent, Suffolk and Eagle are leaving for Singapore on January 8, and will not return until about March 21. The Medway is also expected to leave on a southern cruise towards the end of February. Only the Berwick and Cumberland will remain in the Colony.

The Navy hockey championship will be played off very shortly and all the hockey secretaries are busy with fixtures.

WOLGAST HELD TO
A DRAWRugged Frenchman's
Fine Defence.

TITLE NOT INVOLVED

Paris, Nov. 13.

Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion of the world under the New York Boxing Commission, met real opposition in the person of Valentin Angelmann, rugged Frenchman, and permitted him to obtain a draw in their 10-round contest here to-night.

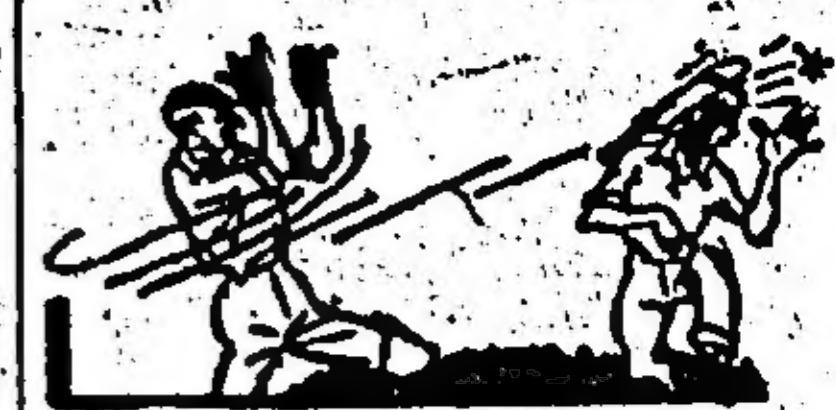

Wolgast's title was not involved. The two fighters fought savagely throughout and exchanged fierce blows.

Midget, who a fortnight ago de-cisioned Jackie Brown, National Boxing Association's champion, conceded 1/2 pound to his opponent. He tipped the scales at 114½, against the Frenchman's 115.

Wolgast displayed speed and cleverness, but found himself holding an even break at the end of the melee. Angelmann met Wolgast's furious rushes with an able defence.

With the draw verdict, Midget barely saved himself from relapsing back again into the losing streak, which he broke by his victory over Brown. Prior to the Brown bout Wolgast lost by a technical knockout to Britt Gorman and dropped decisions to Law Farber and Bobby Leitham.—United Press.

If Fred Archer could be in our midst how would he regard present day race-riding? I can imagine the long, thin, cadaverous face looking more lugubrious than ever. He could not fail to admire the grit, determination, dash, and skill of the jockey of 1933. But of classic style and polished horsemanship he would see so little that his soul would writhe with the agony that, one imagines, would seize the mighty frame of W. G. Grace at a vision of the two-eyed stance in batting.—J. H. Freeman.

There is no quicker, safer, or more certain method to root winter health complaints than by taking 'ASPRO' according to directions. 'ASPRO' nips Cold—Flu and Rheumatic attacks in the bud because after ingestion in the system, it is an anti-pyretic or fever reducer—it is both a powerful

It is safe, sure and certain, and is now the most used medicine throughout the world. Possibly the greatest users of 'ASPRO' are women, for whom it has a special charm on account of the varied periodical experiences with which all women are familiar. They surely know just what a wonderful soother and pain dispeller 'ASPRO' is. Millions of women throughout the World now regularly take 'ASPRO', the safe, sure and effective medicine, to relieve their pain and accompanying physical depression, who before had to resort to dangerous drugs, narcotics or opiates. American Financial Problems

In a recent address in Professor Tugwell, one of President Roosevelt's monetary advisers,
turned epigrammatic and said:
"Hell hath no fury like a professor whose theories are disturbed." He was referring to the group of financial authorities whom he described as "orthodox economists," and who have had
and expressed doubts about the monetary experiments of the Government. But is it not possible that some of the professors who have encouraged and defended that policy begin to feel a little disturbed about their own theories? On paper they had an infallible formula. But somehow the markets and business have not acted as they should under it. The daily curves on the financial chart have a way of varying as if affected by some other influence than a depreciated dollar. Undoubtedly the price level has been somewhat higher,
as the dollar has gone lower, but it is yet to be proved that the purchase of gold by the Government has been the sole or effective cause. What it has brought about, incidentally, and what has obviously disturbed bankers and the Washington Administration itself, is weakness in Government bonds. This has admittedly tended to impair that credit of the United States which the President has asserted it to be his first and most essential duty to maintain. It is now admitted by even the friends of inflation that the "good" sought by it is still a long distance away. This only increases the danger that some other means of reaching it will be devised. Such is always the history of inflation of the currency. It prompts hopes which cannot be realised, and then its sponsors are driven to new varieties of it. It is a well-recognised disease. The symptoms regularly appear, the other

the other. If business and commerce do not behave as it was thought they would, or as it is considered their duty to do, under a regime of moderate inflation,
then it must be made more immoderate. This course of the malady is beginning to reappear,
although, happily, the Washington Administration denies that it is to be followed. But we get fresh rumours every day of a resort to more stringent measures, if American capital takes to itself wings and flies away to financial centres where the currency is not wildcat, the proposal is instantly made to penalise every one who can be caught in such an operation, and absolutely to prevent the process
from being kept up. When Germany and France were a few years ago in the throes of inflation and depreciated currency,
every effort was made to prevent the "flight of capital" abroad.
But as is well known, the thing could not be stopped. It certainly could not be stopped in that manner in the United States today. Indeed, official Washington announces that it has no idea of making that effort. The one sure way to stop it will be for the President to live up to his recent declaration to maintain Government credit along with "a sound currency." It is an old and well-defined agitation which America is again confronting.
Just after Grover Cleveland was elected President for the first time he had to deal with a similar powerful and apparently popular demand that American currency be depreciated. In his letter on that subject, written to Representative Warner of Ohio, just before assuming the Presidency, he used words which seem well fitted to America's present emergency. Referring to proposals which would have had the effect of an "ultimate expulsion of gold," he said:
"Such a financial crisis as this would certainly precipitate, were it now to follow upon so long a period of commercial depression,
would involve the people of every city and every State in prolonged and disastrous trouble.
The revival of business enterprises and prosperity so ardently desired, and apparently so near,
would be hopelessly postponed.
Saddest of all, in every
work-shop, mill, factory, store,
and on every railroad and farm,
the wages of labour already depressed, would suffer still further depression by a selling down of the purchasing power of every dollar paid into the circulation."

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

Mr. Mencken On N. R. A.

Mr. Mencken, who is retiring from the editorship of the "American Mercury," is finishing his editorial career in a blaze of verbal fury. His leading article in the November issue on the National Recovery Act is as mordant as anything he has ever written.

His conclusions are not flattering to Washington. He writes:

"That much may be said for the fundamental scheme of N. R. A.
must be obvious, for more than 500,000,000,000 words have been said to date. It may very well turn out, in the end, that it actually helped on the recovery. But it is one thing to have a grand idea, and it is quite another thing to try to execute it in the manner of a corn-doctor harrising yokels at a country fair.

"Can it be that the American people are so used to quacks, and so fond of them, that they demand
a holy show of quackery, even when the business before them is the simple one of swallowing a dose of castor oil?"

"On no other theory," Mr. Mencken continues, "is it possible to account for the way in which the N.R.A. has been launched in most American communities.

"Nearly everywhere its whooping-up was turned over to a gang of incandescent nobodies—Grover Whalen in New York, and even smaller and smaller Whalens, down to the dimensions of a flea-circus
ballyhoo man, elsewhere.

"Rotary and Kiwanis, in cold storage since 1929, were released and revived to furnish the wind music. The women's clubs poured out their last hours. All the

YOUTH MAY SAVE IRELAND

RALLYING TO RANKS OF O'DUFFY'S BLUE SHIRTS

(By Hugh Alexander Law.)

[The writer of this article was a Nationalist Member of the House of Commons for sixteen years till the end of the war,
and from 1927 to 1932 sat in the Dail.]

The sultry calm that settled down
on Irish politics after the general election of last January seems to be breaking up. In order, no doubt,
to give the present Irish Ministry
no excuse for repeating a catch-cry which then served them so well, the Opposition long refrained from any action which could plausibly be interpreted as "playing England's game."

Of late, however, the atmosphere has sensibly changed. Many who felt that Mr. De Valera should be afforded every opportunity for developing his policy unhampered by even the faintest criticism have come to realise that he has neither the wit nor the will to end the economic war with Great Britain.

Fear Of Communism

Agriculturists have been finding it increasingly difficult to sell their products. Quiet people (a majority here as elsewhere, however difficult it may be for Englishmen to believe
it) are every day becoming more alarmed by the growth of revolutionary Communism.

This is that has brought about the fusion of the Centre Group, representative mainly of the larger farmers, with Cumann-na-Gaeshael and General O'Duffy's National Guard in the party of United Ireland, or Fine Gael.

From a Parliamentary standpoint
this merger is less important than some have supposed. It adds nothing to the voting strength of the Opposition in the Dail, while against the advantage of a united command must be set the closer understanding between Fianna Fail and Labour.

Moreover, one could easily exaggerate its merely mechanical effect in the constituencies; for, under our system of Proportional Representation, the "split vote" is an inconsiderable factor in determining election results.

We shall find its true significance partly in the fresh courage it has already brought into the ranks of the Parliamentary Opposition, but chiefly in this: that, for the first time perhaps since Michael Collins was killed, a direct appeal is being made to that Young Ireland which alone can, if it chooses, not merely make an end to our present distresses, but prevent their recurrence.

Pre-Treaty Conflicts

Those of us who, in the interval,
had occasion to fight contested elections have been sadly aware that,
while old supporters of the Treaty
were still faithful, we were failing to reach the boys and girls whose names adult suffrage was, year by year, adding to the Register. To these the heart-breaking struggles of 1919-21 and 1922-3 were but a romantic film story, in which they regretted not to have had a part.

It was useless to tell them how
Mr. Cosgrave and his colleagues had re-established order, created an efficient police force, assisted agriculture, reduced taxation, and,
in accord with Great Britain, settled agreeably with Irish interests
many outstanding points of constitutional importance.

None of these things was of a nature to appeal greatly to the younger members of a democracy,
quick-witted indeed but politically backward.

Small wonder that they grew
more and more to regard the pro-Treaty groups as a collection of middle-aged ringwumps, or that they listened eagerly to Fianna Fail orators promising a millennium
when "once the 'tools of British Imperialism' should have been finally driven from public life.

Small wonder, too, that they were attracted increasingly towards the I.R.A. by the glamour attaching to its military organisation, its hidden dumps of arms, its secret meetings
and terrifying oaths.

This has been the more disquieting since the closing down of immigration to America has resulted in a steady increase of just that section of our citizens which is unable to find employment, either in the town or country. Both Fianna Fail and the I.R.A. while the war is going on.

putting some of the doctrines of Moscow, have been very ready to exploit the discontents of the land-
less and unemployed.

A Downright Leader

Now it is precisely these young people who hold the balance of power. Their elders long ago ranged themselves with one or other of the established parties. In Ireland we do not easily shift our political allegiance, having in us still much of the clan spirit. We are more apt to follow a leader than to decide a policy.

And even if those farmers who have twice voted for Mr. De Valera should, after further experience,
turn against "and defeat him, the victory would be insecure. If the trouble is not to begin again in a year or two, the young people must be active supporters of the Constitution.

In General O'Duffy we have,
happily, a man well qualified for this task. Not having a seat in the Dail, he is free to devote himself wholly to the work of organisation. That he has had no previous connection with political parties recommends him to those who, however unjustly, despise the "professional politician." His speech is downright, simple and vigorous.

Against Excesses

A soldier and an athlete, he is in instinctive sympathy with young people to whom football and other outdoor exercises are more attractive than parliamentary debate.
Physical training, organised games,
and sports both for adults and children are, indeed, an essential part of the new movement. In that respect, as in the adoption of a special uniform, salute, marching songs and flag (the cross of St.
Patrick on a blue ground), the Blue Shirts are, of course, following certain Continental models.

On other hand, General O'Duffy's own character, as well as his association with the most prudent and experienced of our politicians, guarantees us against such excesses as have marred similar developments
elsewhere.

Precisely because the Blue Shirts
aim above all at a reunited Ireland,
they must of necessity—since thus
only can reunion be achieved—work towards wholehearted acceptance of Ireland's membership in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

QUEEN'S ROAD FIRM FINED
$25 AND WARNED

"They are the most abominable things I have ever seen," said Mr.
E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy this morning on examining two post-cards of Chinese "freaks
of nature, the subject of a summons against the Modern Dyeing

to the Queen's Theatre, for unlaw-

"They are not the usual obscene picture but abominably revolting
freaks of nature," added the Magistrate.

Detective Sergeant Mottram said that he was instructed not to ask for a heavy penalty but to bring the photographs to the notice of the dealers through the Press.

Mr. Hamilton ordered the "confiscation of the entire stock and inflicting a fine of $25 warned the defendant that if any such photographs were found in his shop
again, the full penalty of $250
would be imposed.

"They are just as illegal as indecent pictures," he added.

Fuchow, To-day.

The rebels regime is in earnest in its effort to possess a full paraphernalia for the equipment of its "Central Government".

Mr. Hsu Shih-ching, Chairman of the Commission for Finance, said in an interview with pressmen that preparations were being made for the establishment of "China", which was expected to be inaugurated early next year.

As a first step towards relieving the financial difficulties in Fuchow, the Central Bank, he stated further, would issue $4,000,000 worth of fiduciary notes in order to release the frozen debts of the bankrupt or financially paralysed banks.

The Commission for Culture has also resolved to make arrangements for the establishment of a "People's Central University".—Central News Agency.

Civil Service Uniform.
Beginning from January 1, 1934, all civil servants shall wear blue uniform made of Chinese material and cut in semi-military style. The outfit includes overcoats and caps which are of uniform style and material.

One of the objects of this regulation is to promote the consumption of native clothing materials.

Trade Improvements.
Trade representatives from various provinces were here last week at the invitation of the People's Revolutionary Government and were entertained at receptions given by the Government, its Ministries and Councils.

Concrete proposals were agreed to between the trade delegations and members of the Economic Council with regard to the improvement of trade and cancellation of oppressive taxes.

Overseas Sympathy.
Telegrams from overseas Chinese congratulating the People's Revolutionary Government on its establishment were received here to-day. The general tone of the telegrams urges the Government here to mobilise immediately its forces to put down Chiang Kai-shek and to relieve the people of their miseries the overseas Chinese pledging the Government their wholehearted support.

Among the senders of these congratulatory messages are the South China Anti-Japanese and National Salvation Association, Reformers Progress Society of Malaya, Singapore Chinese Revolutionary Association, Overseas Chinese Association of Hong Kong, etc.

COMING LONDON
CONFERENCE*Union For Protecting

London, To-day.

It was decided at the last Conference of the Union for the Protection of Industrial Property, held at the Hague in 1925, that the next Conference should take place in London in 1933. This date, however, proved impracticable, and it is now decided that the Conference shall be convened for May 1, 1934.

Invitations have accordingly been conveyed by the Government in the United Kingdom, to the Governments of 32 other countries which are members of the Industrial Property Union, to appoint delegates to this Conference.

Copies of the proposals drawn up by the British Government, with the assistance of the International Bureau of Union, which are to form part of the programme for discussion at the Conference, were transmitted to the Administrations of the countries of the Union by the Bureau on April 28, 1932.

It is understood that the Bureau will shortly circulate a further document containing supplementary proposals submitted for discussion by certain other countries.—British Wireless Service.

Mr. Strafford joined the China Light and Power Co. in 1921 as assistant manager, and was appointed manager in 1929.

Mr. Munton, who joined the Company in 1926, became deputy manager in 1929. He is a member of the Hong Kong Club, the Kowloon Cricket Club, the Kowloon Bowling Club and the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club.

of his negotiations with Hong Kong Chinese merchants regarding the proposed $15,000,000 loan, Mr. Chow Lu said that no definite arrangements had been reached in the present stage of negotiations and therefore he could not make any statement on this matter.—Central News Agency.

TRADE DELEGATION

Canton, To-day.

That the prospect of acceding to the demand of the Hong Kong Chinese manufacturers for a reduction of customs rates on their goods imported into the interior is remote, is evident in the Canton Government's assurances yesterday to the delegation, which was formed by over forty members representing different local trade and industrial guilds, that the Government was resolved to give every preferential treatment to domestic manufactured articles against similar goods imported from outside.

Mr. Shih Yi-pang, Secretary of the South-Western Political Council, when receiving the petition of the delegation for non-accession to the demand of the Hong Kong Chinese manufacturers for preferential Customs treatment of their goods, told them that the Provincial Government of Kwangtung was prepared to summon the delegates of various local trade and industrial guilds and other similar organisations to a conference at which views could be exchanged as to the best methods of protecting domestic industries against the competition of foreign manufacturers.—Central News Agency.

CUP*By Mark Channing.

CAPTAIN ETTORRE SQUAR-
CIA'S huge fingers drummed on the trestle table like the muffled hoofbeats of a cantering horse. Crrup-crrup-crrup... His old crony, Death, was too close to him.

Soldier of Fortune and chief assassin to "Sigmundo the Merciless," Duke of Comaccio, Ettorre Squarcia was a veteran dealer in death: he provided it instantly on demand by day or by night and under a dozen different forms, all of which were certain and most of them painful. But to be faced, himself, with what he provided so profitably for others was another matter.

Squarcia detested the thought of dying. It frightened him. He wanted to live to be an old, old man. And since he had so far never failed to get what he wanted he had an unshakable belief that he would die a centenarian. Until to-night. Secret news had just reached him that Pope Clement VI had concluded a truce with Spain. If that were true, and it came to the ears of the Spanish desperadoes who were to help him seize the power, after he had murdered Duke Sigmundo—as he intended to—they would probably betray him to the very man whose assassination he was planning.

The drumming quickened into a mad gallop.

A lazy billowing of the arras and a slight shifting of the shadows cast by the lamp hanging from the groined roof announced the coming of a visitor....

That old rat, Blasci, the goldsmith, doubtless..... Or a messenger..... Squarcia was careful to make it impossible for business rivals to visit him unannounced. It was Blasci.

"The left thumb is pressed upward—so! (He moved the thumb an inch downwards so that Squarcia might see the space between it and the blue fire of the grape. It had been resting upon.) Then, and then only, Excellency, is the venom contained in the head of the nymph to the left of Bacchus released into the wine. Through her lips, Excellency! The left thumb, remember!"

Once more the arras billowed. This time it was a messenger holding a letter. Squarcia glared at him, and raising one of his great hands, said: "You may go, Baccell!"

The agony depicted on the old man's face struck even the bravo. The rat wanted its cheese, of course!

The hinges of an iron-bound box lying to his left hand, screamed noisily as Squarcia lifted the lid. "I pay promptly!" he sneered.

"Nay, my lord!" gasped Baccell. "Nay! Give me no money for it! Only tell me where she is! I ask for no more than that!" He moved a foot nearer to the man he hated with a deadly hatred, and his voice took on a wheedling tone. "Tell me but the street and the number of the house! She is such a little thing . . . and I am so old!"

Squarcia's eyes became pin-points.

"Get you gone—lest I tell her you are dead!" he thundered.

His lip curled as the old man fumbled at the arras and cannoned against the door-post.

"Bring you fresh news concerning this accursed truce?" demanded Squarcia, turning to the bearer of the letter.

"No, my lord!"

"Then what bring you?"

"Your Excellency, the Conte di Amaldi has learnt of your—of a plan to kill the Duke," stammered the spy, tendering the letter. "He sent this to the Principessa Effrida, the Duke's daughter. I have disposed of the messenger."

Squarcia scowled. Here was another piece of bad news! The Conte di Amaldi was a Genoese and affianced to the young Principessa. Not only that: he was a popular idol, and surrounded night and day by a bodyguard of Swiss, who would die for him to a man.

Clearly, if this plan to assassinate the Duke and seize the power was to succeed, Amaldi must die—and to-night. Otherwise it would be Ettore Squarcia who would die.

"Has he . . . spoken to the Duke?" Squarcia licked suddenly dry lips. He knew the sudden mad rages of "Sigismondo the Merciless."

"Not yet, Excellency . . . As your Excellency knows, the Duke—at the Conte's suggestion—entertains Giovanni de' Medici to-night. The Genoese doubtless fears lest suspicion fall upon the Medici family."

Squarcia nodded.

"Then this cursed di'Amaldi knows no . . . names?" he said hoarsely, fondling the pommel of his poignard. The Borgia cup had indeed arrived at an auspicious moment!

"The spy shook his head.

"The warning was given in a song, sung by someone hidden in the bushes under the Conte's window. The singer—who is not known—mentioned no names . . . Capitano

"By the Holy Toe of St. Peter!"

he exclaimed, easing the jewelled girdle of his poignard. "What cup have you there, Capitano? It is marvellous! A veritable gem. I will buy it from you! Va bene! Name your price!"

"It is my hope that Your Grace will design to accept it as a token of my loyal affection, most mighty Duke!" murmured Squarcia, servilely.

"Corpo di Bacco! We accept it—and gladly, Capitano Squarcia . . . But we give you this in its stead!" He laughed jovially and took from his neck a heavy gold chain set with diamonds.

All along Squarcia had known that the acceptance of his gift would mean its "christening" with wine.

The moment had come. He took out the blank death-warrant.

"Tut, man!" frowned the Duke, turning a shade more florid. "Show us no musty parchments here!"

Squarcia pretended not to have heard. Turning to a page who was carrying a taper and sealing-wax, bade him come forward.

"By the Holy Toe of St. Peter!"

he exclaimed, easing the jewelled girdle of his poignard. "What cup have you there, Capitano? It is marvellous! A veritable gem. I will buy it from you! Va bene! Name your price!"

"It is my hope that Your Grace will design to accept it as a token of my loyal affection, most mighty Duke!" murmured Squarcia, servilely.

COLONIAL LEAGUE.

Vienna.
An organisation known as the Austrian Colonial League has been formed here, with important interests behind it, to carry on world-wide propaganda for the granting of a "sphere of influence" for Austria in one of the great continents.

The League holds that the economic independence of Austria would be furthered if such an outlet could be found for its superfluous unemployed youth, who through lack of occupation often become involved in extremist movements.

The League plans to cater only for single men at first. They would be organised as "civil soldiers" under semi-military discipline.—Reuter.

NAVY'S DESERT THIRST

1,200 Pints Of Beer Drank At Tahkeddi Inquiry

Palapye Road.
One thousand, two hundred pints of beer in four hours.

That was the size of the thirst of Vice-Admiral E. R. G. Evans' naval escort during their visit to Serowe in connection with the Tahkeddi inquiry.

It took 1,500lbs. of ice to cool their beer. The canteen on the special train was opened one hour a day and the whole of the South African Railway staff on board concentrated on slaking the Navy's desert thirst.

The sailors paid a shilling for every pint of beer consumed.—Reuter.

"It is but one urgent warrant, your Highness... As your Grace knows, several such have been necessary... and useful, lately!"

The Duke glanced down at the big emerald signet ring on his left forefinger and turned to his daughter.

"Peste! What think you, Efralda mia? Shall we seal it for the sake of the royal cup we have been given?"

The girl's clear eyes regarded Squarcia, who dropped his gaze.

"If it be a warrant for some man's death, as I gather it is, why not let the culprit be tried in your courts, my lord?" She glanced anxiously towards the heavy curtains at the end of the hall. Her young husband-to-be should have arrived. Late arrival at a banquet was a sinister augury in the 16th century.

Squarcia's eyes sparkled. "Naught would have induced me to come to your highness at such a time were it not that the man has confessed to being the leader in a plot to kill your grace—to-night! His immediate death sentence is necessary to crush the danger."

The unforgotten anxiety in his voice told in his favour. In his mind's eye, Squarcia already saw the Conte di Amaldi's name in the blank space in the warrant.

The Duke's eyes smouldered. "By... I swore. Then to a Florentine page he said: 'Fill this kingly goblet with Malvesia—and to the brim!'"

Malvesia was Duke Sigismondo's favourite wine.

The boy poured in a little wine and rotated the pup at an angle, and having washed it, threw the contents on to the rush-covered floor. It was a measure of prudence commonly observed by the nobility of the age.

Efralda de Commacio glanced impatiently at her father.

"Surely your judges can deal with these malefactors, my lord?"

"The beautiful Principessa will forgive me," cut in the bravo, snavely. "This man is no ordinary traitor. He has dared to slander you and the noble Conte di Amaldi in the bawdy quarter of the city, gracious lady! There should be no mudd on criminal!"

The shaft struck home and a flush dyed the girl's cheeks.

"For such as he, I plead not! Seal the warrant, my father. These things offend my ears." Her dislike of Squarcia was maddeningly obvious to him, for her abruptly turned shoulder.

"Now, Capitano! A draught from this divine love-cup shall wash away the recollection of a sordid piece of business! Our daughter is right!"

Although the Duke was still smiling and apparently occupied with rotating his signet ring, the smouldering eyes were fixed relentlessly on Squarcia's face. They reminded the eyes of a hawk when it is about to spring.

Somewhat—the merest twinkle of a facial muscle—maybe—had revealed in "Sigismondo the Merciful" that terrible suspicion which invariably spells death for the suspected.

"Drink!" he said curtly. "We accord to you the honour of being the first!" His tones had the quality of cold steel.

Obediently Squarcia lifted the cup. But he lifted it slowly. A stir at the far end of the banquet hall had attracted his attention.

The Conte di Amaldi was hurrying towards the Duke, carrying a bundle of signed proclamations.

As Squarcia's eyes met those of the young Genoese over the golden rim the ball of a huge left thumb was pressed quickly upwards.

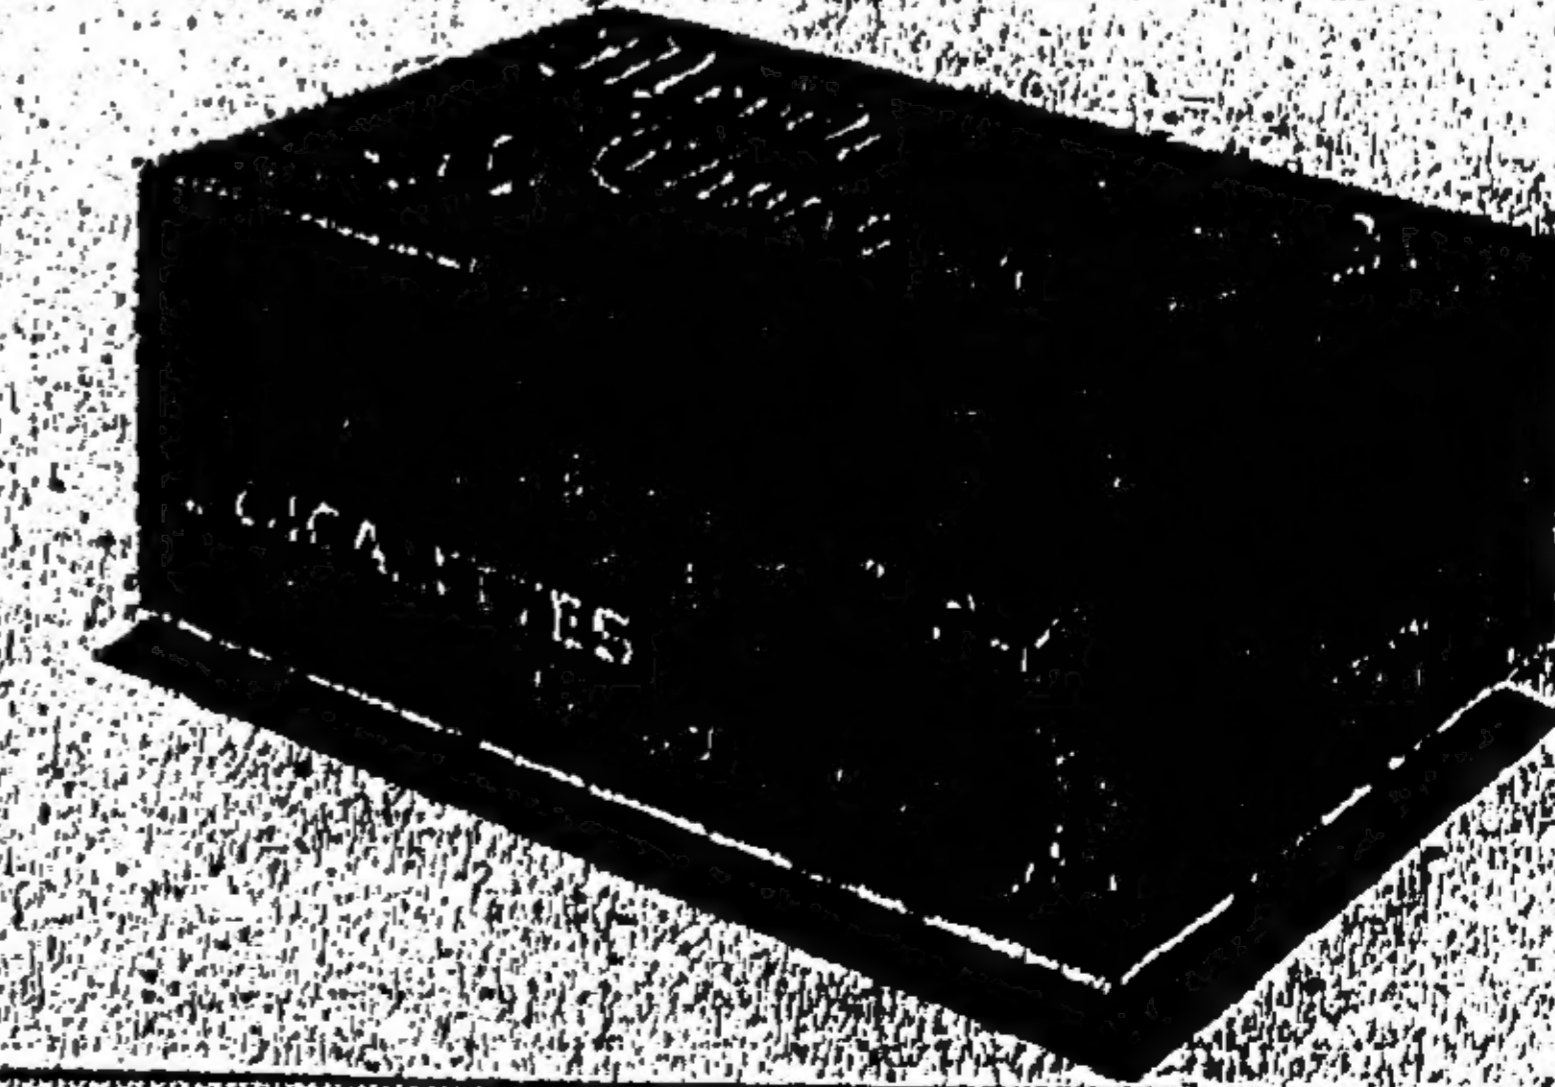

Knowing "Sigismondo the merciful," Captain Ettore Squarcia thanked God he had only ten minutes to live.

Alleged Collision At Wharf

Steamship Company
Sues Motor Ship.

STEAMER DAMAGED

At the Supreme Court this morning before the Acting Chief Justice, Hon. Mr. J. B. Wood, the Wo Ping Steamship Co. Ltd. claimed the sum of $1,655 from the owners of motor vessel Hoi Kong, for damages occasioned by an alleged collision which took place on the morning of May 22, at the Chiu On Wharf, Connaught Road West.

Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Messrs. Russ and Co., appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs, while Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Messrs. D'Almada and Mason, represented the defendants.

The Claim Stated that on the morning of May 22, this year, the Hoi Kong, arrived at 7 a.m. from Wuchow and ports and proceeded to take up her berth on the eastern side of the Chiu On Wharf, off Connaught Road West, the vessel being in charge of the Master or pilot.

The plaintiff's vessel, the Wo Ping Yat was moored on the outer or northern portion of the wharf. The Hoi Kong was heading east in the fairway and when close to the wharf, which was on the starboard side, stopped her engines for the purpose of heaving alongside the Wo Ping Yat to proceed to her berth behind the latter vessel.

Several junks being moored to the wharf behind the Wo Ping Yat, the Hoi Kong made fast to the Wo Ping Yat for half to three quarters of an hour to enable the junks to move out, after which the Hoi Kong proceeded to berth worked by her winches.

Mr. Macnamara said there was really only one point of issue, whether there had been any collision or not, and he would call evidence to show that there had been one.

Expert Evidence.

Mr. T. H. G. Brayfield, Certified Marine Surveyor said he has seen the damage to the Wo Ping Yat, which must have been caused by a collision at practically right angles. The Hoi Kong must have struck the Wo Ping Yat with her bows on the port side near the second hatch.

Shown the sum charged by the Dockyard for repairs, witness said it was very reasonable sum.

Chan Cheong, an old Chinese woman, the wharfinger of the Chiu On Wharf, said she remembered a collision between two vessels, one approaching from Lyemun Pass to take up her berth behind the Wo Ping Yat and then coming alongside with a bump.

The case is proceeding.
